ENERGY SURCHARGES

Currently, significant global events are resulting in an unprecedented pace of inflationary pressures on our raw materials, packaging, utilities and freight.

Due to these pressures, Ecovyst Catalyst Technologies, which is comprised of the Ecovyst Silica Catalyst business and Zeolyst International, will be introducing an energy surcharge policy across the entire product portfolio to reflect the current cost dynamics in the global energy market. The surcharges will become effective April 1, 2022 and will remain valid until further notice.

Our number one priority is smooth business continuity for our customers. We continue to leverage our global network to secure manufacturing and services efficiency. However, the increasing magnitude of recent energy related inflation can no longer be fully absorbed and require us to implement surcharges. We want to assure our customers that the surcharge policy will be closely monitored and is structured to adjust in either direction based on the incurred, elevated costs during this period of volatility.

Ecovyst Silica Catalysts and Zeolyst International will communicate the relevant surcharges, which are in addition to previously announced price increases, directly with each of our customers. Customers with questions should reach out to their local sales representative who is available to answer any questions you may have about this policy.

We remain focused on the continued supply of high quality products.
